Princess Eleven;
Plays She's QueenWINDSOR, Eng., April 21.—
Princess Elizabeth, heir
presumptive to the British throne, celebrated her 11th birthday
today with play at a make-believe "coronation" which may some day be turned into reality
for her.There were presents from her mother and father, King George and Queen Elizabeth, and a surprise package from "Uncle David", whose abdication as Edward VIII last December brought her one step nearer the throne, but her absorbing interest now is in a child's version of the coronation of her parents May 12.CONTINUE FIGHT
ON LABOR BOARDHouse, In Accord Against Sit-Downs, Resumes
Its Debates(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, April 21.—The Ohio
house of representatives, on record against sit-down strikes, resumed
a fierce debate today over a proposal to create a state labor relations board.Rep. W. H. Whetso (D-Lawrence) led a fight to delete an amendment outlawing sit-down strikes, which he declared would "tear the heart
out" of his labor board bill."Footing the Bill"
The amendment, adopted 51 to 50,
was offered by Rep. Thomas A.
Christy (D-Monroe) who said he acted "in the interest of the citizens of Ohio who have to foot the bill of labor disputes by paying higher prices for commodities."Meanwhile the legislature in general, its tempo quickened by prospects of quitting work late next week, tackled several other important measures.The house prepared to take up next a congressional redistricting measure, and the senate turned to bills for regulating the sale of whisky warehouse receipts, establishing a state board of osteopathy
and creating a state tobacco commission.The senate finance committee ploded forward with the $28,000-100 biennial appropriation bill, rejecting amendments to increase or decrease the 1937-38 budgets of state departments, and its chairman hoped to have the measure ready for a vote in the senate by Friday.Vote on Quitting
The senate is expected to vote
tomorrow on a house-approved resolution fixing April 29 for quitting work and May 10 for sine die
adjournment. Democratic Floor Leader Keith Lawrence said he would ask the senate to concur.One of the most controversial bills was disposed of yesterday
when the house education committee killed, by a vote of 11 to 4, a proposed law to grant state aid to private parochial and private schools. The measure originally carried an annual appropriation of $3,500,000, but the figure was increased to $7,000,000 in committee.The question of poor relief was left sleeping. Sen. Harold D. Nichols (D-Clermont) planned to seek reconsideration of his two-year $15-000,000 program yesterday, and then postponed action until today.LISBON LISTS

Rival Union Leaders Attend Perkins Industrial Rally

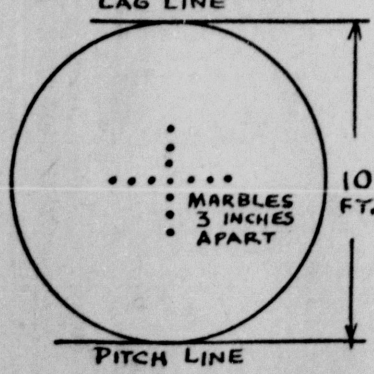

Front row—William Green, R. C. Whiting, Secretary of Labor Perkins and John L. Lewis

When William Green, left president of the American Federation of Labor, and John L. Lewis, right, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, both attended the labor-industry conference called in Washington by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, it was the first time they had faced each other since the split betweentheir respective labor organizations. The parity, called by Secretary Perkins, at whose right is standing R. C. Whiting, industrialist, was designed to work out satisfactory machinery under the Wagner labor act which will tend to eliminate strikes and lessen the current tension in the business world.Star Improvises
In Dayton TheaterDAYTON, April 21.—Jane Cowl improvised a few lines
never written into her play-script.The star of "First Lady" halted
the third act of her play last night, turned to the audience and said:"I'm sorry to interrupt, but too much noise is being made back-stage for me to continue."
She disappeared into the wings, returned a moment later, asked, "Now, where were we?"—
and went on with the play.LARGER RELIEF

sist Efforts To Boost Plan(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 21.—Democratic leaders, heeding President Roosevelt's plea for economy, resisted efforts today of two groups of representatives to boost next year's relief funds far above his recommendation of $1,500,000,000.Rep. Maverick (D-Tex.) invited more than a score of his colleagues to discuss the possibility of increasing the appropriation by $900,000-000. Rep. Boileau (Prog-Wis.) said the house "liberal bloc" would try to raise it to $3,000,000,000.Administration chiefs, besides forecasting defeat for these proposals, expressed certainty they could stop efforts of other senate
and house members to cut Mr.
Roosevelt's request by a third.Speaker Bankhead indicated the leaders were ready to put on the pressure to block all bills—except those of the utmost importance—which would authorize extra appropriations.TRUCK ORDERED

By CouncilCOLUMBIANA, April 21.—The village council Tuesday night recommended the purchase of a new fire truck to replace one which has been in use here for the last 15 years.The councilmen acted after a group of firemen, including Fire fore the law makers and cited the need of the new apparatus. The truck, to be secured as soon as possible, will be one most adapted to the needs of the community. The amount to be expended in buying the new engine was not disclosed.A cancellation of the annual spring cleanup this year was revealed by council last night, brought about by the closing of the Salem road. The village dump is located on this road.The streets committee announceed that work would be started May 1 on relaying of the bricks on South

the Union Banking Co., building.Work already is progressing on patching of holes on North Main st.,

Salem Schools' Mibs Stars Practice Up For News Tourney

Plenty of Time Yet to Sharpen Shooting Eyes; Dates To Be Announced Soon

Official Ring For Marble Tourney

This is the official marble ring as played in The News tournament. To form it you level the ground as smooth as possible removing all stones and other obstructions and pack the surface hard. Then with a string exactly five feet long, describe a circle 10 feet in diameter. Draw two straight lines touching the circle on opposite sides. Place 13 marbles in the form of a cross exactly in the center with the marbles three inches apart.to enter The News tournament may not be accustomed to the game of ringer, which is played in all national events. In case you're not, the accompanying sketch of the official ring and how to make it will no doubt help you out in practice.
The ring sketch also appears onthe rules sheets which were to be passed out to the various schools today by Joe Kelley, manager of the Memorial building who is in charge of the tournament.Kelley planned to talk with school principals and teachers about making arrangements for room tournaments, which will precede the finals in the seven schools included in the tourney. Dates for the room tournaments, which will be of elimination style with one defeat ousting a player, will be announced as soon as they are set.It will be noted in the ring sketch appearing with this story that there are parallel lines on opposite sides of the ring, called the pitch line and lag line. These are for use in determining which player will shoot first in a game. The players stand on the ring line and toss their shooters at the lag line with the player whose shooter comes nearest the lag line winning the first shot.Did John and Bill
Speak to Each Other?WASHINGTON, April 21.—
Did John L. Lewis and William Green speak to each other or not?Some participants in yesterdays capital-labor conference at the labor department said the one-time friends, who now are rivals in the union movement, had nothing to say when they met there."But I saw them shake hands," insisted one business
leader. "Introductions were going the rounds when they came side by side. I heard 'Hello, Bill' and 'Hello, John.' It stopped there."ROUTE 9 REPAIR
ON STATE LISTCouncil Assured by Engineer That Money's All That's NeededHarry Sharp, New Philadelphia,
division engineer for the state highway department, notified city council by letter today that the repairing of Route 9 for a distance of 3.6 miles from the Salem corporation limits south to the beginning of the concrete highway, is included in the department's road repair program.Council several weeks ago asked highway department officials to explain why the job, prepared in project form sometime ago, had been delayed in starting.

Awaiting Funds

Engineer Sharp assured council that the improvement would be started as soon as funds are available. He explained that the department had not yet been given its appropriation for the year. Sharp suggested the city might impress upon its state representative and senator the need of extra highway funds—funds which would be procured if a bill for an extra cen-tal gas tax, now pending in the house,
is passed."If this bill passes," the engineer continued, "Salem city streets will benefit as well as state highways
since 15 per cent goes to municipities."The Route 9 improvement plans call for widening the road with water-bound macadam and retopping with two and one-half inches
of black top bituminous concrete,
making a minimum width of 20 feet. The curves, too, will be widened.

Ask Adjustment

Burt Capel and John T. Burns,
North Ellsworth ave. property owners, last night appeared before council to request an adjustment in sewer tapping charges, which,
they explained, were not uniform.

IT'S OUR BABY, BUT—

It remains to be seen whether a promise of financial aid to Canadian units of United Automobile Workers trying to bring General Motors Corp. to terms will prove satisfactory. The Canadians had asked for an international strike.

A lot of anxious squirming is going on. A theory of union organization which originated in the United States is being applied red-hot to workmen of a foreign country—being applied, furthermore, by direction of union officials in the United States.

It is a stinging demonstration of the political and economic power which this country exercises over Canadian affairs. The situation which has developed carries in it, furthermore, a threat of complications most unpleasant to Canadians who resent their inclusion in the American sphere of influence.

The demand that General Motors employ in the United States go on strike in sympathy with their Canadian brothers could have been met only at the expense of breaking an agreement with management. It amounted to a demand by Canadian unionists of the CIO persuasion that their American brethren acknowledge parentage of the baby and take responsibility for its rearing.

That, said the Americans, was too much; they would contribute to the child's financial support, but previous obligations restrained them from taking it to their bosom. In the meantime, some of them probably are thinking that the "international" idea of unionism shouldn't be taken too seriously.

A WORD FOR THE BRAVE

They don't expect much; they don't get much. Maybe half a dozen times a year they perform publicly for a handful of devoted spectators. The rest of the time they perspire.

Their condition must be perfect. Because "form" is the secret of what they are trying to do, they do everything with the precision of clockwork, so many steps a minute, so many strides to each breath, so many motions to each performance.

For weeks, months, even years, they practice, until their legs quiver with exhaustion and their lungs are on the verge of bursting, maybe dreaming that some afternoon they may immortalize themselves by setting a new record. Most of them know, of course, that a record is beyond their grasp. That doesn't matter greatly.

Occasionally, one of their number flashes into unusual and unexpected prominence, which makes all of them proud, and perhaps a little envious. They keep plugging, regardless, for the fun they get out of doing it, not for cheers, glory, or hope of financial gain. The suspicion of commercialism never touches them.

At the beginning of another track season, then, a word for the brave young men who will run, jump and throw heavy objects until June, almost unnoticed, almost unsung, almost unspoiled by the spectator influence which complicates athletics in America.

ONE MAN'S GUESS

It is to be hoped the persons raging because Sen. Vandenberg believes there are only 2,975,000 jobless persons in the United States are able to understand their own position.

Their guesses are just as good as Sen. Vandenberg's—but no better. They don't know a bit more than he does about the matter; everything depends on the viewpoint. Some of them want to think the unemployment total is large because that suits them best. The senator wants to think it's small because that happens to suit him best. In the absence of an unemployment census, there's nothing else to do.

There's a fable about a group of blind men guessing what an elephant looked like, by feeling separate parts of it, and maybe that's what the man from Michigan was thinking of when he based his guessing on the proportions of the unemployment elephant's tail.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, April 22

Particularly lively and progressive conditions are foreseen for this day's lunar and mutual aspects. The mind and energies will be pitched to high peaks of adventure and ambition, with important projects under great stimuli. But there are also signs of frustration and impediment as well as annoyances and troubles born of impulse and tumult. Safer progress depends on the diplomatic, restrained or strategic manipulation of contingencies. Strive for high goals; influential friends will lend ready support.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by events and prospects of importance during the year, with the spirit of initiative under keen edge and the faculties and mental equipment spurred to contend with existing obstacles and frustrations. Tact, diplomacy and strategem will succeed in difficult places, with the support of powerful friends assured. All pertaining to writings as well as investments, friends and public affairs should flourish.

A child born on this day may be conspicuously talented and versatile, enterprising and ambitious. It will succeed, probably reaching public position, by its endowments and the preferment of those in power.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, April 21—The No. Man's Land or Powder Rooms of the night clubs and cafes are becoming the most luxuriously outfitted nooks in the nocturnal spread. Proprietors have found that ladies who largely guide the evening destinies, want to go where the mirrors and lights are flattering.

So it is good business to lavish the decorator's art as bait. Much of the success of "No. 21" is reputedly due to the splendor of the ladies' room. Other successful restaurants, such as The Colony, El Morocco and Stork Club are similarly appealing to women.

The most desirable jobs for colored maids in Harlem are as Powder Room attendants in the classy downtown oases. It gives them, next to a place in the Cotton Club chorus, the greatest social standing of all, although the pay is comparatively small.

The receptionist in most instances receives a salary only of her tips, and the fine-feathered femmes who frequent the night clubs and cafes are either stingy or careless about tipping. The most lucrative Powder Room post, indeed, is in the medium-priced places.

No night club, incidentally, has ever seemed to survive a jinx, save the old Palais Royale site. It started off with the Paul Whiteman band and a flourish and then was a haven for a succession of costly flops. No body seemed able to put it over until this winter, when the Cotton Club, having failed after a larruping career in Harlem, moved to the Big Apple and shot into over-night popularity again. It has been almost as popular as the original Palais Royale, despite the fact the night club belt has long since switched from Broadway to the East Side in the '50's.

There are faint indications, too, that the most gigantic of the skyscraper flops—the Empire State building—may survive its failure and fulfill the hopes of builders. After all, Radio City turned the trick. The Empire State not only opened in the zero of a depression, but at a time when the district in which it was built underwent a sudden change. Only the entrance fees to the tower—which have steadily averaged $1,000 a day—saved the promoters from locking the doors and throwing away the keys. Everything that could be done to get it going was tried, but it remained largely tenantless. In the past year, however, there has been a gradual diminishing of empty space, and if the present pace continues optimists hope to see it out of the red by 1945. Also Al Smith, his brown derby and fat cigar in the lobby around noon daily have had their part in keeping the Empire State in the spotlight.

Incidentally, the World's Fair in 1940 is already having an appreciable effect on apartment house and private home leases. Shrewd real estate appraisers believe rents will go soaring with the fair and the year of preparation preceding it. All available living space, it is argued, is likely to be at high premium and leases are already being extended by some tenants, where possible, to cover that period. Hotels, of course, expect to reap the larger harvest yet there are no plans for more inns save a few hurriedly constructed affairs to be erected on the fringe of the grounds.

Save for a few sporadic spots in Harlem and Greenwich Village, the chili parlor does not catch on in New York although some of the most expert fashioners of the fiery potions from Texas and Mexico have tried their hand. In the southwest and far west, easterners will rush to the chili joints but they do not seem to care for it on home grounds. Reuben's is about the only classy cafe that puts it on the menu. Among the notable chili fiends have been Will Rogers, Will Hoeg, Ted Healy, George Olsen, Walter Catlett and W. C. Fields.

The most startling of the city's statues is not really in New York but directly across the Hudson in New Jersey. In the Palisades Park to be exact. It is the heroic figure flung up in bronze of the beloved Walt Whitman. Palisades Park, when it was merely a wild scramble of bramble and trees, was a Whitman stamping ground on his prowls. The statue, set ground level, shows Whitman pushing through the brush life size, and picnickers coming upon it suddenly stop and gasp. The monument is the work of Jo Davidson and the gift of W. A. Harriman to the park.

PREVENT INFECTION

FOR MANY years scientists have been working to find the causes of colds. Though some progress has been made many important questions are still unanswered. But valuable work has been done in aiding individuals to prevent or overcome the common cold, that ailment which probably causes more waste of time and money than any other known disease.

A cold is an infection. When the body resistance is low, the individual is a ready victim to cold germs that are everywhere about us. Those who overeat, as well as those who are anemic and undernourished, also quickly "catch cold." It will be seen then that proper food, eaten in discreet amounts, is of the greatest importance in combatting a cold.

Recent experiments have proved that foods rich in vitamin A build up the resistance, prevent infection and, in many cases, reduce the length of the attack. It was also found that where the vitamin A content was inadequate, infections occurred in the eyes, nose, throat and lungs. Continued lack of vitamin A in the diet results in serious and permanent changes in the body.

Vitamin A Foods

While vitamin A is not a cure for colds, it does aid in their prevention. But please remember that it is wisest to include vitamin A foods in the diet at all times and not wait until you are suffering from a cold. Scientists tell us that this vitamin is of the greatest importance in maintaining vitality and nutrition. One famous chemist says that "parents should not only be sure vitamin A—minded about food, but also they should know that vitamin—minded is a matter of continuous day-to-day supply."

Vitamin A is found in many foods. It is abundantly contained in butter, milk, egg yolk, cream and liver. It is also present in leafy vegetables, such as spinach, lettuce, greens, bananas, apricots and peaches. In addition to vitamin A foods, alkaline or base-forming foods must be generously included in the diet of those suffering from colds. They are equally valuable in the diet of healthy individuals.

Base-forming foods help maintain the "alkaline reserve" of the body. They neutralize the effect of acid-forming foods. Fruit juices, fruits, vegetables, nuts and milk are tried and approved alkaline foods.

It is easier to prevent a cold than cure one. Good health is a precious asset. Proper diet will help you maintain it.

"Leisure to Repent"

by Ursula Parrott

CHAPTER XXV.

June went by—and more of July. Keith stayed in town because his arm still needed frequent medical attention, though his leg was completely knitted and he was able to walk with a scarcely noticeable limp. The redness went out of the scars on his face. They became reasonably inconspicuous.

His father would not hear of opening the country house and abandoning Keith to solitude in town. So through the first heat they lived a strange existence in their large high-ceilinged house, more dependent on each other's society than they had ever been. His father began to tell Keith long stories of his youth, the pirate's methods at the turn of the century, when he, his friends and his competitors played with one another's fortunes as if they were checkers on a board. He was oddly interested.

Once his father interrupted himself by saying: "This must bore you. I suppose soon the stiffness will go out of your arm, and you'll be able to enjoy painting again."

"I suppose so. I don't paint well, you know."

"Nonsense! That portrait of me is a fine thing."

"Best I ever did, at that. But it was the subject that made it exceptional." An impulse came to Keith abruptly. With a corner of his mind he examined it a moment, and let it have its way.

"Is there anything left of the steel-rail business which you think I could take charge of?"

His father gasped: "My original business, from which the rest came? You don't think I'd let that go, in my life! But—you don't mean what you just said."

"Why not? I've told Felicia I'll join her in England if she sends for me. But after that, in the autumn, say, when her divorce is through, no reason I shouldn't go to work."

His father's old face was too much like that of a boy who had received his heart's desire. People were pathetic. Well, better to be a rather insignificant business man than a totally unemployed painter.

The hot sunny days went by, in which his doctor came—and the masseur who was bringing back circulation to his long unused arm muscles. His arm began to improve steadily. The doctor mentioned a date a week distant when the sling would be no longer necessary. For the rest, time was suspended. He and his father in their high-ceilinged house were isolated in a kind of island of relative coolness in the Manhattan heat. Because he had been very ill, Keith was grateful for the interval of utter effortlessness, before it would be necessary to go back to problems, decisions, complications. He waited, until he should hear from Felicia, and not hearing quickly, decided that she was probably returning to America.

On an afternoon of late July, his father was resting in his room, and Keith was reading by the French windows in the rear drawing-room, when a maid brought him a card.

He read: "Mr. Eustace Gardiner Dayne." He said: "Bring him in here, please." And he recognized, with a relief he had not expected to feel, that his time of waiting for something to be solved, was finished.

When Eustace left Felicia in front of her father's house, on that June day so like their wedding-day, he started for New Mexico the same evening, though he had not told her that he meant to do so.

He had no desire left in him as clear as the desire to get as far away from her as possible, since she so plainly did not want him near. Nor ever had, perhaps. He had pretended that she was "fond" of him. Probably he's always known better.

She was not to be blamed. Even in his thoughts he insisted on that. She had married him not loving him, and he had known it. He had so wanted the girl she's been, that he'd been willing to risk it. This was the way the risk had turned out. She could not help not loving him. If she's deceived him in the most shabby fashion possible, she probably meant to spare him by that deceit.

Only—how could she! Every time his thoughts reached that point, he slid away from it. For he would not blame her, and he could not justify her.

He would have stayed with her as long as she liked. But she snatched at the opportunity her parents' suggestion of an English visit offered. He would defy his own family for her sake, and never let them push him into a divorce. But now he was sure that whenever Felicia was ready, she would ask for a divorce herself.

He would have earned money for her somehow, as long as she needed it. But she would not need it long. Even now she preferred spending her father's money (which was Gilbert Windon's, of course) to taking his. And she would have Keith Sheldie's money soon enough.

He could do nothing for her any more. She would not let him. So he judged she must despise him, must always have counted him stupid and inconsequential.

In New Mexico he was offered a job of sorts. He suspected it was given out of charity more or less, but he had no choice in taking it. To finish Felicia's hospital bills, he'd sold not only his beloved hunters, but even their saddles and blankets! He hadn't let Felicia know; and when Michael Rendale offered to help, he'd been able to say: "Thanks; I don't need it." He couldn't do any more now, but until the day she left his house, he'd looked after her as well as he could.

The job was to manage a new-ranch, easterner's newly-acquired ranch. Eustace hadn't known that anyone was growing new-rich the last years. But it appeared this man was an exception.

Eustace only met the owner once, and suspected him at first glance of being a gangster. He had no chance to modify that opinion, because the owner left for the east and Europe, after announcing that he had a string of horses arriving, and he expected they'd need fancy care, for the fancy price they cost him.

That casual speech had not prepared Eustace for the type of horses which arrived, in shockingly bad condition from the journey through the heat, at the railroad station forty miles from the ranch. They were eastern thoroughbred racing stock, and anyone who'd ever ridden in the desert country would know they were no earthly use there. Where his employer had picked them up, he wondered, though he guessed the blood lines of several of them well enough. He supposed some owner of a small string had a streak of bad luck and had to sell them.

Eustace spent the happiest week since April, taking the best care of them he could; and he felt in love with a big black gelding who had impressed him casually the day he arrived with the others.

Carefully, in the very early morning, in the late evening when it grew cool, he tried the horse out. It was a shame, in a way, to use him for a saddle horse, but a worse shame, once he felt his spirit to let him sweat in a stall.

He wired his employer on the eve of his sailing: "How do you want the horse trained?" and received the incredible answer: "Broken in for my friends to ride."

Eustace grinned, for the first time in months. He doubted very much if this example of the new-kind of money had any friends who could sit the worst of the string, two minutes. But he had his instructions.

When he was a little boy, he had had a horse named Dark Lad, his first horse. He named this horse for that one.

No pedigrees had arrived with any of the string, and so no names. It was all absurd enough. He had never owned a better horse than this Dark Lad. He did not dare risk his legs on desert riding, but he found a path that was fairly smooth, leading from the ranch to a cluster of barren hills on the desert's edge. He rode Dark Lad back and forth that path daily. The ride was the single bit of his day that was comforting. For the rest, he held brief conversation with the cheerful cowboys who would be necessary for him to make a short trip East that summer, and had been told: "Get things organized, and then go when you want."

He had wanted to sort out the stored furnishings of his and Felicia's home, so that he could keep for her whatever he thought she might want, and sell whatever else was clearly his. For he had some small debts that worried him. Throughout his marriage, he had let Felicia spend all he had, but he had always paid his bills.

Besides, he meant to see Keith Sheldie. He had decided to see Keith long before he started West. But at that time he had learned that Keith was not sufficiently convalescent to see anyone. By now, he probably would be.

With the most careful instructions to his foreman as to the care of Dark Lad, he started East. On the plane, he thought over and over what he meant to say to Keith, while a young actress returning from Hollywood in the seat opposite flung admiring glances at his healthy blondness, and he never saw her at all.

Keith said to him, "How are you?" and thought: "He doesn't look well. He is haggard, for all his tan."

Eustace said: "Sorry to intrude." "Not at all."

He told his employer that it was Keith's in a long chair facing the garden. Eustace stood facing him.

"I've come about Felicia."

"I supposed so."

"It's an odd visit. There've been so many hours when I've wished you dead." That, he had not planned to say. But confronting him whom she wanted, he was desolate. There Sheldie sat, in his dark slenderness, looking mocking as — as Felicia looked sometimes.

He steeled himself. And in Keith Sheldie stirred a kind of reluctant admiration for the iron composure of that tall figure.

Eustace went on: "But my wishes concerning you are fairly irrelevant. Since Felicia happens to prefer you to me, that's that. All I must know, to guide my own conduct, is that you intend to see her through."

"And if I did not?"

Eustace drawled: "I think I should kill you."

Keith stood up, limping a little. "I don't doubt it. My question was inexcusable, except on the grounds of curiosity. Naturally, I'm seeing her through if that's what she wants. She hasn't sent for me."

"Do you have to be sent for?"

"Yes, under the circumstances. I can't well force myself on Mr. Rendale, or on Mr. and Mrs. Windon, or on Felicia herself."

Eustace nodded, but not as if all that were important. "You mean to marry Felicia?"

The agony that question cost him he could not quite conceal.

Keith answered simply: "Yes, if she'll have me."

"Do you know what you want, Sheldie?"

A business emergency demands that Hull fly to the north woods for a conference with executives there and his secretary is to go along. Just before they are to start, word comes that the trip is not necessary but Miss Roberts destroys the telegram without showing it to Sylvia Sidney as Joan Graham, wife of Henry Fonda in "You Only Live Once" at the State tonight and Thursday.

May Cut Down Curve
The solons last night also discussed the possibility of eliminat-

so that the streets, alleys and sidewalks committee might study it.
The blanket project, Barckhoff explained, would include two and streets, not yet designated, however. The program would allow for about $90,000 worth of street payments in the city.

Mushnock Not Indicted
The jury considered 32 cases, considered two and no-billed 13. Among those the jury declined to indict
was George Mushnock of Midland, Pa., now serving a term in the Mansfield reformatory for robbery.
Mushnock was suspected of complicity in the fatal beating of Francis J. Cannon, East Liverpool pottery salesman, who was killed May 13, 1936. Court house officials said Tuesday his name was not included in the secret indictments.

Cases against Harvey Williams,
East Liverpool, and Robert Dutcher, Rogers, were continued. Both men were charged with breaking and entering. Dutcher was recently committed to the Massillon State hospital by Probate Judge Homer Hammond following a sanity hearing.

The jury, as its final act, inspected the county jail Tuesday afternoon. They recommended a refrigerator three times the size of the one now in use and suggested new linoleum for the hallway and entrance. "Everything else is in fine shape and the jail in 100 per cent condition for an old building," the report stated.

counties.

Cy Blanton Pitches Five Hitter To Give Pirates Win In Opener With Cubs

Hal Schumacher of Giants, Elden Auker of Tigers, And Monte Weaver of Senators Also Turn In Good Mound Performances; Indians Lose

NEW YORK, April 21.—Four pitchers, all of whom had more or less fallen from glory in the past two years, were back on top today as the result of yesterday's opening games of the 1937 baseball season.

These four, Darrell, Eljah (Cy) Blanton of Pittsburgh, Hal Schumacher of the New York Giants, Elden Auker of the Detroit Tigers and Monte Weaver of the Washington Senators, turned in some of the most sparkling feats on the six-game program which attracted a total of 181,016 cash customers.

The seventh game on the general opening slate, which followed Monday's previews in two cities, was rained out. Chicago's White Sox and the St. Louis Browns, weather permitting, will make their debuts today.

Blanton, who won 18 and lost 13 for the Pirates in 1935, suffered last season from the second-season letdown that afflicts many star rookies and his earned run average hopped from 2.59 to 3.51.

In spite of that, Manager Pie Traynor shoved Blanton into the opener against the Chicago Cubs yesterday, and Cy pitched a five-hit shutout, to win 5-0 and send the Pirates soaring.

Schumacher, another sinker ball expert, won 19 and lost 9 two seasons back, but he almost threw his arm out of joint on every pitch and last year had trouble with his right elbow. Yesterday he limited the Dodgers to five hits as the inter-borough rivalry was renewed before 32,367 fans.

Auker also was at his best in 1935 when he won 18 and lost only 7, but slumped last year. He got his comeback chance because both Schoolboy Rowe and Tommy Bridges were ill, limited Cleveland to nine blows and won 4-3 when Gerald Walker thrilled 38,000 customers with a terrific clouting show.

Weaver, a star in 1932, slid clear back to Albany three years later. He returned to the Senators last year and showed so much improvement he was named to oppose the Yankees before the 45,850 crowd that turned out for New York's opener. He subdued the world champions in all but one inning and came through with a 3-2 decision.

One of the largest crowds in the history of Cincinnati's Crosley field, 34,374, saw Dizzy Dean touched for 13 hits, blank the Reds for ten innings and emerge with a 2-0 decision when Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize connected for successive doubles off Ray (Peaches) Davis. Lippy Leo Durocher singled and Catcher Bruce Ogdowski dropped a long fly into the outfield.

The Philadelphia Athletics, who led the American league for one day, came back to normal when three pitchers failed to check the attack of the Boston Red Sox and the gold-plated won 11 to 5. Harry Kelley, the starter, yielded eight runs and half Boston's 18 hits. The A's however, came up with the home run leader in Bob Johnson, who hit his second in two days.

The Boston Bees and the Phillies, who opened with a double-header Monday, remained idle.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, April 21.—He's still top. Babe Ruth visited the Yankee stadium yesterday and stole the show away from the Yankees and Senators. He got the biggest hand of the day when he walked into his box. In the fourth inning, the great man reached across the railing and snagged a foul off Frank Crosetti's bat.

Opening day notes: Frank Hogan, Washington catcher and Walter Brown, Yankee pitcher, the biggest men in baseball, "stood for pictures together. Something Hogan would never do before because he was so much bigger than Brown. When the parade to the flagpole passed the right field bleachers, 3,000 fans began to chant: "We want Ruffing." Col. Ruppert's blood boiled as they say in Brooklyn. Tony Lazzeri and Joe DiMaggio, who have been before the opener, Max Kase, Journal sports writer, brought them together.

Benny Leonard picks Tony Cazzoni to lick Lou Ambers and win the lightweight title for the third time.

Clara Mortensen, the grapplerette, has been booked for ten weeks on the coast under the "Toke" Mondt banner. The International league has turned out a nifty "white book" to go with the American league's "red book" and the National league's "green" one.

Press Agent Ernie Lanigan has crammed it with interesting dope and figures.

Ohio State Golfers Ready For Matches

COLUMBUS, April 21.—The Ohio State university golf teams got in final practice today for their week-end matches here. The season opener will be with Oberlin tomorrow. Indiana will play here Saturday and Notre Dame Monday.

The varsity team, selected in a 36 hole medal test, will be: Ralph Schaeffer of Dayton, Don Poulson of Columbus, E. D. Townsend of Cincinnati, Charles Carl of Ravenna, R. M. Hatton of Akron, Charles Grabb of Springfield and R. L. Holmes of Cuyahoga.

Chigre carried off speed honors for training of Derby candidates early in April. Working over a good track at Douglas Park at Louisville, the gelding established a new fast mark for the spring season by stepping three-quarters of a mile in 1:15.

After his tune-up race during the Keeneland meeting in the Blue Grass state, Chigre will await the bugle call for the Derby with his backers still hopeful of collecting their 50 to 1 hazard.

Sophomores Sweep Final Events To Win Salem Hi Inter-Class Track Meet

Trailing by more than 20 points at the end of the first day's events of the annual two-day Salem High school inter-class track and field meet, the Sophomores came from behind to sweep the closing events at Reilly stadium yesterday and capture the meet championship.

The Seniors, who held the lead in the meet, when nine events were completed Monday, finished second after being practically shut out from points in the six events run off yesterday. In winning the meet the Sophomores scored 62½ points. The Seniors collected 55½ points while the Freshmen, who came in third, totaled 22 points and the Juniors, who finished last, counted 15.

Lettermen from Coach Fred Cepe's 1936 Salem High track team won all but two of the events, but their points did not count in the scoring. If the markers counted by the monogram wearers had been included in the scores, the Seniors would have won the meet easily.

The only non-lettermen to win first places were Carroll Beck, a senior, who won the 100-yard dash by nosing out Howard Tibbs and Stuart Wise, sophomore, who made the best beave in the javelin throw.

From the outstanding performers of the meet, Coach Cepe will pick a squad for Salem High's duel contest with Youngstown Taven at Reilly stadium Friday afternoon.

Summaries of the events follow:
DISCUS—Lutsch (L) won; Hipple (Sr) second; McQuiston (Sr) third; Schaeffer (Sr) fourth; Dickey (Sr) fifth. Distance—109 feet, 5 inches.

CHIGRE TRAINS WELL AS LONG SHOT IN DERBY

Applegate, Owner, Captured 1914 Classic With Old Rosebud

NEW YORK, April 21.—Hamilton C. Applegate, whose Old Rosebud captured the Kentucky Derby in 1914, has a long shot possibility as his lone candidate for the 63rd running of the Churchill Downs stakes on May 8.

The Louisville sportsman entered Chigre, a chestnut son of Peter Hastings-Twilight Maiden, in the mile and a quarter 3-year-old special next month.

After heavy commissions on Chigre were received by various operators of winter books, the "sure thing" boys still offer 50 to 1 against the gelding chances of copping the $50,000 added prize this year.

Chigre as a juvenile was not impressive. While he won three races out of nine starts, he failed to beat any of the topnotch youngsters last season. His victories were all at Latonia, where on May 28 he won his first two starts from mediocre opposition. His best race was at the Kentucky oval, when on June 20 he beat Josh by a length in a 6-furlong sprint affair.

Subsequent races were so disappointing that Applegate retired the gelding after a dismal performance at Washington Park on Aug. 22.

Chigre was one of the first of the 103 nominees to this year's renewal of Col. Matt Winn's pageant to start training for the big event. He has been consistently under saddle for more than a month and looms as a certain starter in what is expected to be a record field.

Chigre carried off speed honors for training of Derby candidates early in April. Working over a good track at Douglas Park at Louisville, the gelding established a new fast mark for the spring season by stepping three-quarters of a mile in 1:15.

After his tune-up race during the Keeneland meeting in the Blue Grass state, Chigre will await the bugle call for the Derby with his backers still hopeful of collecting their 50 to 1 hazard.

BOWLING RESULTS

The Salem News was out in front in the National Bowling league today after winning three games from the American Legion at the Masonic temple alleys last night while their close rival, Bunn's Shoes, dropped two out of three tilts with the Masons.

Bunn's was formerly tied with the Newsies for first place but its two defeats last night lowered it into the runner-up position. The Shoemans will get their last chance to pull into the lead next week when they meet the News in the final match of the league season.

Mullins Manufacturers, who have two postponed matches to roll off, remained as possible contenders for the league championship last night by winning two out of three games from the Veterans Foremen. One other match saw the Knights of Columbus take three games from the Saxons.

The race for the lead in the Pastime league went into a three way tie last night at the Grate alleys as Bingville's Blues and Kaufman's Grocers pulled up even with the Ohio Edison Electric Shop, which lost two of three games with the Snell Auto Supply. The Blues won two out of three games from the Famous Dairy and Kaufman's took three beats from London's V-8's to climb into the tie first.

Second Salem Team To Take Crack At Pins In National Bowling Meet

Mullins Foremen To Leave Friday For Competition In A. B. C. Tournament; Bowl In Five Man Event Saturday; Doubles, Singles Sunday

The 36th annual American Bowling Congress tournament, which is rapidly nearing the end of its long run at the 212th Coast Artillery army in New York city, will attract its second Salem entry this week-end when representatives of Mullins Foremen's club bowl in the national classic.

Leaving Friday for the tournament, the Foremen will roll in the five-man event after their arrival in Gotham on Saturday, then return to the ABC alleys Sunday for competition in the doubles and singles events.

The same team which bowls for the Foremen in the Class A National league will make the trip to New York. This squad includes Charles West, Mike Thiel, Jim Armstrong, Bob Campbell, George Harroff and John Carpenter, captain. All of these keggers, except Campbell, competed in the ABC tournament at Indianapolis last year.

Mullins is one of two Salem teams which entered the ABC meet this year. The other local entry, the Eagles, had its turn in the tournament earlier this month, but failed to get into the big money class although two of its bowlers, Paul Covert and Bob Tubbs, recorded an 1,142 score in the doubles which will probably come in for a small amount of prize money.

If any records are to be broken in the national tournament the fellows who are scheduled to bowl in the next two weeks will have to be a lot better than the thousands of keggers that have preceded them. Ever since March 10 the boys have been knocking over pins morning, noon and night but the best they've done so far has been to threaten the tournament standards and fall down at the finish.

Detroit's Krakow team did that when it took the five-man lead, totalling 3,118 against the record of 3,199 established in 1927 by the Tea Shops of Milwaukee. Later Walter Ward of Cleveland approached the high all-events total of 2,069, made in 1933 by Gil Zunker of Milwaukee, who couldn't come close to that figure a couple of days ago. Ward rolled a nine-game 2,039.

Yesterday it was little Gene Gagliardi, who owns a barber shop in suburban Mount Vernon. For two games it looked as if Gagliardi would break Larry Shotwell's singles record of 774 when he put together games 266 and 277. But on his final game he scored a comparatively low 208.

The three-game score of 749 gave Gagliardi the singles lead by 20 pins over Ernie Soest of Santa Monica, Cal.

Dog Wins Place As Deputy's Sheriff

LISBON, April 21—Meet "Deputy Sheriff Ex", standing 28 inches from the ground and afraid of nothing in the world.

"Ex" is the only unofficial official in Columbiana county court house circles. He's on duty 24 hours a day, like the rest of the sheriff's department, but is particularly mindful of his responsibilities at night. A sudden sound, an unexpected word and the deputy is instantly on the alert.

He was presented to Sheriff Harry Gosney this week by a family who found him too large for their home. A member of the German Boxer family—a rare breed—"Ex" is also distinguished by an elaborate pedigree. He carries and conducts himself like the aristocrat he is.

The dog has accompanied the sheriff on several trips since Monday. At night he roams the jail. Later a sizable kennel will be made in a fenced in portion of the jail yard where he will spend his leisure during the day.

BUSINESS WILL ASK PROTECTION

Organized Campaign Is Foreshadowed by Perkins Rally

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Secretary Perkins' capital-labor conference foreshadowed an organized business campaign, informed persons said today, to impose restrictions on unions and to give employment protection under the Wagner act.

In addition, these persons asserted, officers of Secretary Roper's business advisory council recently submitted to president Roosevelt confidential recommendations that labor's legal responsibilities be increased.

These proposals were expected to come, openly from two groups: the board of the National Manufacturers association, meeting today in New York, and the United States Chamber of Commerce, convening here next week.

Administration chiefs indicated any congressional consideration probably would be deferred until wage and hour legislation is discussed, which may not be until the court issue is disposed of.

Participants in the labor relations conference at the labor department said questions raised by business spokesmen showed their views.

Both those representatives and union leaders raised such objections, it was said, that a plan to issue a summary of conclusions was abandoned.

Secretary Perkins told reporters both sides "agreed to observe collective bargaining contracts as sacred and binding and to recommend the same attitude to their associates."

Summit County Law Officers Drive On Wild Cabin Parties

AKRON, April 21.—Sheriff Walter P. O'Neill said today that his deputies would be regular callers at certain Summit county tourist cabins which have become popular for "necking parties."

"This business of using camps for necking parties has become a serious problem in public morals," the sheriff said after visiting two camps near Akron.

"I have received many complaints from persons living near tourist camps who point out that the unwholesome trade creates a bad atmosphere for children."

O'Neill said that only one of 50 couples found at the two camps visited were able to show they were married.

Joe Louis Signs For London Bout
